About the programs Warming Up to More than New Technology

Technology is more than a new piece of equipment. It can be a cutting-edge procedure, a different take on a typical treatment plan, new materials, or a deeper understanding of how other medical disciplines interact with implant dentistry.

This two-day scientific program provides an unbiased and practical look at what every practicing implant dentist must know to better treat their patients...in one of the most beautiful, warm and relaxing locations in the world.

You are told that 3-D and CAD/CAM imaging will make placement more precise. Has it become the "standard of care?" Is it time for you to invest in 3-D? Today's implant dentist is continually asked by patients to do more esthetically for them. Patients present with medical conditions and are treated with drug therapy. This leads to potential unforeseen complications. Stem-cell research may even eliminate the need for dental implants in the future.

Expert, practicing implant dentists will share their evidence-based research and their everyday, practical experiences working with implant patients. After attending this conference, you will:

- Learn about new Cone Beam/CADCAM technology and whether it is time to implement this technology
- Discover how 3-D imaging has improved subperiosteals in the treatment of severely resorbed ridges
- Become familiar with how biometric principles and the science and methodology for utilization of Joint Vibration Analysis (JVA) with Jaw Tracker 3D, EMG and T-Scan Occlusal Analysis Systems in various modalities can impact your practice
- Gain perspective on the best use of Lasers in implant dentistry
- Be able to evaluate abutment, crown and bridge materials and determine what is right for your case
- Learn about the advances in Digital Shade Analysis in accuracy with aesthetically demanding cases
- Know whether PRP, PRF and BMP is living up to its promise
- Become familiar with the latest applications for Piezosurgery
- Learn the latest in pharmacology
